Re: Shareholder Proposal Submitted by the National Legal and Policy Center

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter is submitted on behalf of JPMorgan Chase & Co., a Delaware corporation (the “Company”), pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j) promulgated under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the “Exchange Act”). The Company requests that the staff of the Division of Corporation Finance (the “Staff”) of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the “Commission”) not recommend enforcement action if the Company omits from its proxy materials for the Company’s 2024 Annual Meeting of Shareholders (the “2024 Annual Meeting”) the shareholder proposal and supporting statement (the “Proposal”) submitted by the National Legal and Policy Center (the “Proponent”).

This letter provides an explanation of why the Company believes it may exclude the Proposal and includes the attachments required by Rule 14a-8(j). In accordance with relevant Staff guidance, we are submitting this letter and its attachments to the Staff through the Staff’s online Shareholder Proposal Form. A copy of this letter also is being sent to the Proponent as notice of the Company’s intent to omit the Proposal from the Company’s proxy materials for the 2024 Annual Meeting.

Rule 14a-8(k) and Section E of Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14D (Nov. 7, 2008) provide that shareholder proponents are required to send companies a copy of any correspondence that the shareholder proponents elect to submit to the Commission or the Staff. Accordingly, we are taking this opportunity to remind the Proponent that if the Proponent submits correspondence to the Commission or the Staff with respect to the Proposal, a copy of that correspondence should be furnished concurrently to the Company.

Background

The Company received the Proposal on October 31, 2023, along with a cover letter from the Proponent. On November 8, 2023, the Company sent a letter, via email, to the Proponent requesting a written statement verifying that the Proponent owned the requisite number of shares of the Company's common stock continuously for at least the requisite period preceding and including the date of submission of the Proposal. On November 8, 2023, the Company received an email from the Proponent with a copy of a letter from Fidelity Investments verifying the Proponent's stock ownership in the Company. Copies of the Proposal, cover letter and related correspondence are attached hereto as Exhibit A.¹

Summary of the Proposal

The text of the resolution contained in the Proposal follows:

RESOLVED: Shareholders request the Board of Directors to oversee an audit that analyzes the impacts, both adverse and beneficial, of JPM's climate transition policies regarding the economic and humanitarian effects on emerging nations, which rely heavily on — but have limited access to — fossil fuels and other non-“renewable” sources of power, such as nuclear. Perspectives from a full spectrum of respected economists, nongovernmental organizations, research firms, and public-interest groups could be considered. JPM should avoid one-sided political or viewpoint bias, with the auditor consulting specialists across a range of stances — including those who may rebut prevailing corporate media- and government-driven narratives on climate and energy. Among perspectives that may be considered include experts such as Alex Epstein, Michael Shellenberger, Bjorn Lomborg, Robert Bryce, Roy Spencer, John Christy, ¹ Exhibit A omits correspondence between the Company and the Proponent that is irrelevant to this request, such as the aforementioned deficiency letter and subsequent response. See the Staff's “Announcement Regarding Personally Identifiable and Other Sensitive Information in Rule 14a-8 Submissions and Related Materials” (Dec. 17, 2021), available at <https://www.sec.gov/corpfin/announcement/announcement-14a-8-submissions-pii-20211217>.

Roger Pielke, Jr., Richard Lindzen, and others.

A report on the audit, prepared at reasonable cost and omitting confidential or proprietary information, should be published on JPM's website.

Bases for Exclusion

We hereby respectfully request that the Staff concur in the Company's view that it may exclude the Proposal from the proxy materials for the 2024 Annual Meeting pursuant to:

- Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because the Proposal deals with matters relating to the Company's ordinary business operations; and
- Rule 14a-8(i)(3) because the Proposal is impermissibly vague and indefinite.

Analysis

A. The Proposal May Be Excluded Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) Because the Proposal Deals with Matters Relating to the Company's Ordinary Business Operations.

Under Rule 14a-8(i)(7), a shareholder proposal may be excluded from a company's proxy materials if the proposal "deals with matters relating to the company's ordinary business operations." In Exchange Act Release No. 34-40018 (May 21, 1998) (the "1998 Release"), the Commission stated that the policy underlying the ordinary business exclusion rests on two central considerations. The first recognizes that certain tasks are so fundamental to management's ability to run a company on a day-to-day basis that they could not, as a practical matter, be subject to direct shareholder oversight. The second consideration relates to the degree to which the proposal seeks to "micro-manage" the company by probing too deeply into matters of a complex nature upon which shareholders, as a group, would not be in a position to make an informed judgment.

The Commission has stated that a proposal requesting the dissemination of a report is excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) if the substance of the proposal involves a matter of ordinary business of the company. See Exchange Act Release No. 34-20091 (Aug. 16, 1983) ("[T]he staff will consider whether the subject matter of the special report or the committee involves a matter of ordinary business; where it does, the proposal will be excludable under Rule 14a-8(c)(7)."). In addition, in Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14E (Oct. 27, 2009) ("SLB 14E"), the Staff noted that if a proposal relates to management of risks or liabilities that a company faces as a result of its operations, the Staff will focus on the “subject matter to which the risk pertains or that gives rise to the risk” in making a decision regarding whether a proposal can be properly excluded pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7). Pursuant to SLB 14E, the Staff has consistently permitted exclusion of shareholder proposals under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) requesting an assessment of risks when the underlying subject matter concerns the ordinary business of the company. See, e.g., Netflix, Inc. (Mar. 14, 2016) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal that requested a report “describing how company management identifies, analyzes and oversees reputational risks related to offensive and inaccurate portrayals of Native Americans, American Indians and other indigenous peoples, how it mitigates these risks and how the company incorporates these risk assessment results into company policies and decision-making,” noting that the proposal related to the ordinary business matter of the “nature, presentation and content of programming and film production”).

In accordance with the policy considerations underlying the ordinary business exclusion, the Staff has consistently permitted exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of shareholder proposals relating to the products and services offered for sale by a company, including its lending and underwriting activities. See, e.g., JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Mar. 25, 2022) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting a study on the effects of the Company’s underwriting practices regarding multi-class share offerings); JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Mar. 26, 2021) (same); JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Mar. 19, 2019) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting a report examining the “politics, economics and engineering for the construction of a sea-based canal through the Tehuantepec isthmus of Mexico,” noting that the proposal “relates to the products and services offered for sale by the Company”); Wells Fargo & Co. (Jan. 28, 2013, recon. denied Mar. 4, 2013) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the company report on the adequacy of the company’s policies in addressing the social and financial impacts of its direct deposit advance lending service, noting that the proposal “relates to the products and services offered for sale by the company,” and that “[p]roposals concerning the sale of particular products and services are generally excludable under rule 14a-8(i)(7)”; JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Mar. 16, 2010) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board implement a policy mandating that the Company cease its current practice of issuing refund anticipation loans, noting that the proposal “relate[s] to [the Company’s] decision to issue refund anticipation loans” and that “[p]roposals concerning the sale of particular services are generally excludable under rule 14a-8(i)(7)”; Bank of America Corp. (Feb. 21, 2007) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting a report on policies against providing financial services that enable capital flight and result in tax avoidance, noting that the proposal “relat[es] to [the company’s] ordinary business operations (i.e., sale of particular services”).

The Staff also has consistently permitted exclusion of shareholder proposals relating to a company's decisions with regard to financial products and services offered to particular types of customers. In JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Mar. 12, 2010), for example, the proposal requested a report assessing the impact of mountain top removal coal mining by the Company's clients on the environment and people of Appalachia and the adoption of a policy barring future financing of companies engaged in mountain top removal coal mining. The Company argued, in part, that the proposal related to its ordinary business matters because it sought "to determine the products and services the Company should offer, as well as those particular customers to whom the Company should provide its products and services." In permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7), the Staff noted that the proposal related to the Company's "decisions to extend credit or provide other financial services to particular types of customers" and that "[p]roposals concerning customer relations or the sale of particular services are generally excludable under rule 14a-8(i)(7)." See also, e.g., JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Feb. 21, 2019) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board complete a report on the impact to customers of the Company's overdraft policies); Anchor Bancorp Wisconsin Inc. (May 13, 2009) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board adopt a new policy for the lending of funds to borrowers and the investment of assets after taking preliminary actions specified in the proposal, noting that the proposal related to the company's "ordinary business operations (i.e., credit policies, loan underwriting and customer relations)"); JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Feb. 21, 2006) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal recommending that the company not issue first mortgage home loans, except as required by law, no greater than four times the borrower's gross income, noting that the proposal related to the Company's "ordinary business operations (i.e., credit policies, loan underwriting and customer relations)").

In this instance, the Proposal is focused on the products and services offered by the Company and its decisions with regard to underwriting and financing, both of which are ordinary business matters. In this respect, the Proposal's resolved clause requests that the Company provide an audit report that "analyzes the impacts [...] of [the Company's] climate transition policies regarding the economic and humanitarian effects on emerging nations." The Proposal's supporting statement indicates a particular concern with the Company's underwriting and financing decisions, noting that the Company "has made energy transition policies integral to its lending and underwriting activities." The supporting statement continues to describe ways in which the Company has committed to "finance and facilitate [...] climate action and sustainable development," reduce emissions, "phase out 'credit exposure' to the coal extraction industry," and "mobilize finance in support of the UN Sustainable Development Goals in emerging economies," all of which the Proposal claims are in conflict with the Company's commitment to the UN Sustainable Development Goals. More specifically, the Proposal's "whereas" clauses improperly imply the Company's sustainability goals will harm developing nations, which "represent potential sources of business growth [...] for JPMorgan Chase & Co." When read together, the Proposal's resolved clause and supporting statement demonstrate a clear focus on the Company's ordinary business matters.

In this regard, the Proposal's concern with the impacts of the Company's financing and policy decisions on "emerging nations" further demonstrates that the Proposal is focused on the Company's ordinary business matters. The Company is one of the largest financial services firms in the world and is a leader in investment banking, financial services for consumers and small businesses, commercial banking, financial transaction processing and asset management. The Company's decisions to offer lending and underwriting products and services to particular customers in light of its climate-related targets and strategies, or the effect of those decisions on the worldwide economy, involve complex legal, regulatory and operational considerations. Moreover, the Proposal's request for an audit on the economic and humanitarian effects of these decisions on emerging nations does not transform these matters from ordinary business matters, because the effects of such decisions are themselves ordinary business. Namely, when making lending or underwriting decisions, the Company must consider numerous factors including the Company's climate-related targets and strategies as well as possible economic impacts and business risks presented by the Company's financing decisions. Such decisions are at the heart of the Company's business and are so fundamental to its day-to-day operations that they cannot, as a practical matter, be subject to direct shareholder oversight.

We note that a proposal may not be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) if it focuses on a significant policy issue. However, the fact that a proposal may touch upon a significant policy issue does not preclude exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7). Instead, the question is whether the proposal focuses primarily on matters of broad public policy, such that they transcend the ordinary business of the company. See 1998 Release; SLB 14E. The Staff has consistently permitted exclusion of shareholder proposals where the proposal focused on ordinary business matters, even though it also related to a potential significant policy issue. As discussed above, in JPMorgan Chase & Co. (Mar. 12, 2010), the proposal requested, among other things, that the Company adopt a policy barring the financing of companies engaged in mountain top removal mining. In permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7), the Staff noted that "the proposal addresses matters beyond the environmental impact of [the Company's] project finance decisions, such as [the Company's] decisions to extend credit or provide other financial services to particular types of customers." See also, e.g., PetSmart, Inc. (Mar. 24, 2011) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) when, although the proposal addressed the potential significant policy issue of the humane treatment of animals, the proposal covered a broad scope of laws ranging "from serious violations such as animal abuse to violations of administrative matters such as record keeping”); CIGNA Corp. (Feb. 23, 2011) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) when, although the proposal addressed the potential significant policy issue of access to affordable health care, it also asked CIGNA to report on expense management, an ordinary business matter); Capital One Financial Corp. (Feb. 3, 2005) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) when, although the proposal addressed the significant policy issue of outsourcing, it also asked the company to disclose information about how it manages its workforce, an ordinary business matter).

In this instance, the Proposal does not focus on any significant policy issues; rather, it refers to “humanitarian effects” as an argument against climate transition policies due to the alleged detrimental economic effect of such policies. In fact, the Proposal urges that the requested report consider a particular viewpoint — supported by a number of authors, scientists and pundits that are largely skeptical of modern scientific consensus regarding climate change — that suggests there is no significant policy issue relating to climate change, greenhouse gas emissions or fossil fuel consumption.² Thus, the Proposal is firmly focused on the economic effects of the Company’s financing decisions, which demonstrates that the Proposal’s focus is on an ordinary business matter.

Accordingly, consistent with the precedent described above, the Proposal may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) as relating to the Company’s ordinary business operations.

B. The Proposal May be Excluded Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(3) Because It Is Impermissibly Vague and Indefinite.

Under Rule 14a-8(i)(3), a shareholder proposal may be excluded from a company’s proxy materials if the proposal or supporting statement is contrary to any of the Commission’s proxy rules, including Rule 14a-9, which prohibits materially false or misleading statements in a company’s proxy materials. See Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14B (Sept. 15, 2004) (“SLB 14B”). The Staff has recognized that exclusion is permitted pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(3) if “the resolution contained in the proposal is so inherently vague or indefinite that neither the stockholders voting on the proposal, nor the company in implementing the proposal (if adopted), would be able to determine with any reasonable certainty exactly what actions or measures the proposal requires.” See SLB 14B; see also Dyer v. SEC, 287 F.2d 773, 781 (8th Cir. 1961) (“[I]t appears to us that the proposal, as drafted and submitted to the company, is so vague and indefinite as to make it impossible for either the board of directors or the stockholders at large to comprehend precisely what the proposal would entail.”).

In accordance with SLB 14B, the Staff has consistently permitted exclusion of shareholder proposals under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) as impermissibly vague and indefinite where the proposal contained an essential term or phrase that, in applying the particular proposal to the company, was unclear, such that neither the company nor shareholders would be able to determine with any reasonable certainty what actions or measures the proposal requires. See, e.g., Philip Morris Int’l, Inc. (Jan. 8, 2021)* (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) of a proposal requesting that the company’s “balance sheet be strengthened significantly,” where it was unclear how the essential terms “strengthened” and “significantly” would apply to the company’s balance sheet); Cisco Systems, Inc. (Oct. 7, 2016) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) of a proposal requesting that the board “not take any action whose primary purpose is to prevent the effectiveness of shareholder vote without a compelling justification for such action,” where it was unclear what board actions would “prevent the effectiveness of [a] shareholder vote” and how the essential terms “primary purpose” and “compelling justification” would apply to board actions); Pfizer Inc. (Dec. 22, 2014, recon. denied Mar. 10, 2015) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) of a proposal requesting that the board adopt a policy that “the Chair of the Board of Directors shall be an independent director who is not a current or former employee of the company, and whose only nontrivial professional, familial or financial connection to the company or its CEO is the directorship,” where it was unclear whether the proposal intended to restrict or not restrict stock ownership of directors and any action taken by the company to implement the proposal, such as prohibiting directors from owning nontrivial amounts of company stock, could be significantly different from the actions envisioned by shareholders); AT&T Inc. (Feb. 21, 2014) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) of a proposal requesting that the board review the company’s policies and procedures relating to “directors’ moral, ethical and legal fiduciary duties and opportunities” to ensure the protection of privacy rights, where it was unclear how the essential term “moral, ethical and legal fiduciary” applied to the directors’ duties and opportunities); General Dynamics Corp. (Jan. 10, 2013) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) of a proposal requesting a policy that, in the event of a change of control, there would be no acceleration in the vesting of future equity pay to senior executives, “provided that any unvested award may vest on a pro rata basis,” where it was unclear how the essential term “pro rata” applied to the company’s unvested awards); The Boeing Co. (Jan. 28, 2011, recon. granted Mar. 2, 2011) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) of a proposal requesting that senior executives relinquish preexisting “executive pay rights,” where it was unclear how to apply the essential term “executive pay rights”).

In this instance, the Proposal is impermissibly vague and indefinite. The Proposal asks that the Company oversee an audit that “analyzes the impacts, both adverse and beneficial, of [the Company’s] climate transition policies regarding the economic and humanitarian effects on emerging nations.” The essential terms in this request—“economic and humanitarian effects” and “emerging nations”—are vague and indefinite, such that neither the Company nor shareholders would be able to determine with any reasonable certainty what actions or measures the Proposal requires. In this regard, there are no qualifying words or phrases that precede or follow the words “economic and humanitarian effects” or “emerging nations” that could help determine the scope of the requested report. For instance, although the resolution of the Proposal requests that the Company’s Board of Directors oversee and report on the audit, it is unclear exactly what “economic and humanitarian effects” the Company would analyze in relation to its climate-related targets and strategies and which nations qualify as “emerging nations” that should be the subject of the analysis. The Proposal implies that emerging nations are those that “rely heavily on – but have limited access to – fossil fuels and other non-‘renewable’ sources of power, such as nuclear,” which appears to implicate any country that uses fossil fuels. This could cover nearly every nation on earth. In addition, it is unclear how the Company would even determine and analyze the “economic and humanitarian effects” of its climate-related targets and strategies on certain nations, as the Proposal provides no guidance on the method for such analysis. Instead, the resolution of the Proposal simply states that “[p]erspectives from a full spectrum of respected economists, nongovernmental organizations, research firms, and public-interest groups could be considered.” Moreover, the complexity, depth and breadth of the requested report would vary drastically depending on how the underlying audit defines “economic and humanitarian effects” and “emerging nations,” which the Proposal, again, provides no guidance to the Company on how to define.

Further, the Proposal’s supporting statement does not provide any guidance on these matters either and only makes broad and vague assertions on rising energy prices and their impact on poverty. The Proposal provides no guidance on the time frame that analysis of the “economic and humanitarian effects” of the Company’s climate-related targets and strategies would cover. The Proposal thus could conceivably cover a wide range and time frame of impact related to the Company’s climate-related targets and strategies in making lending and underwriting decisions. Given these ambiguities, the resolution contained in the Proposal is so inherently vague and indefinite that neither shareholders voting on the Proposal, nor the Company implementing the Proposal (if adopted), would be able to determine with any reasonable certainty what actions or measures the Proposal requires.

Accordingly, consistent with the precedent described above, the Proposal may be excluded pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(3) on the basis that the Proposal is impermissibly vague and indefinite, in violation of Rule 14a-9.

Conclusion

On the basis of the foregoing, the Company respectfully requests the concurrence of the Staff that the Proposal may be excluded from the Company's proxy materials for the 2024 Annual Meeting. If you have any questions or would like any additional information regarding the foregoing, please do not hesitate to contact me at (202) 371-7180. Enclosure: "Humanitarian Risks Due to Climate Change Policies" proposal

Humanitarian Risks Due to Climate Change Policies

WHEREAS: The global energy crisis has focused the public's and policy makers' attention on the effects from rising energy prices. Russia's invasion of Ukraine is partially to blame, but the haphazard worldwide transition to so-called¹ "green" energy has arguably inflicted greater harm via toxic pollution and energy prices.²

- According to Fatih Birol, Executive Director of the International Energy Agency, developing nations are the most vulnerable to rising fossil fuel prices.³ "Birol said those who will be hit hardest include oil-importing nations in Africa, Asia and Latin America because of higher import prices and their weaker currencies."
- 760 million people, primarily in Africa and Asia, still don't have access to electricity, according to the IEA.⁴
- Reduced investment in fossil fuels disproportionately impacts the poor.⁵ "Reducing poverty is not feasible without access to cheap and reliable energy."⁶
- Developing nations represent potential sources of business growth—or decline—for JPMorgan Chase & Co. ("JPM") and the global economy.

SUPPORTING STATEMENT: JPM has made energy transition policies integral to its lending and underwriting activities:

- JPM joined the Net-Zero Banking Alliance in October 2021.⁷ The NZBA is a group of leading global banks, convened by the United Nations, committed to transitioning the economy to net-zero emissions by 2050.⁸
- JPM has pledged to finance and facilitate $2.5 trillion in climate action and sustainable development by 2030.⁹
- JPM is targeting a 31% reduction in emissions from crude steel production and a 36% reduction from aviation by 2030.¹⁰
- JPM has promised to phase out "credit exposure" to the coal extraction industry by 2024.¹¹

- “The J.P. Morgan Development Finance Institution (JPM DFI) was established in January 2020 to mobilize finance in support of the UN Sustainable Development Goals in emerging economies.”

JPM’s climate policies appear to conflict with its commitment to the SDGs,¹² especially the first goal of “no poverty.”¹³

RESOLVED: Shareholders request the Board of Directors to oversee an audit that analyzes the impacts, both adverse and beneficial, of JPM’s climate transition policies regarding the economic and humanitarian effects on emerging nations, which rely heavily on – but have limited access to – fossil fuels and other non-“renewable” sources of power, such as nuclear. Perspectives from a full spectrum of respected economists, nongovernmental organizations, research firms, and public-interest groups could be considered. JPM should avoid one-sided political or viewpoint bias, with the auditor consulting specialists across a range of stances – including those who may rebut prevailing corporate media- and government-driven narratives on climate and energy. Among perspectives that may be considered include experts such as Alex Epstein, Michael Shellenberger, Bjorn Lomborg, Robert Bryce, Roy Spencer, John Christy, Roger Pielke, Jr., Richard Lindzen, and others.

A report on the audit, prepared at reasonable cost and omitting confidential or proprietary information, should be published on JPM’s website.
